The tool supports every single Photoshop filter that you can find inside LaunchBox, but if you want to install new plug-ins, just click on the yellow button below and go to the plug-ins section. Made in England (Modern Family) "Made in England" is the twenty-sixth episode of the third season of the American sitcom Modern Family, and the series' seventy-sixth overall. It was aired on April 18, 2011. The episode was written by Chris Messina and directed by Beth McCarthy-Miller. The episode was also the last appearance of Eric Stonestreet in the series before his departure to star in The New Adventures of Old Christine. In the episode, the whole family plans a vacation for the summer to England. Cam and Mitchell go to England to help Charlie and Luke move into their house; Claire is put in charge of the kids and Phil is in charge of Mitchell; Phil and Mitch get into a fight. Cameron uses a made-up excuse for why Mitch can't come to England to check up on his mother. "Made in England" received mixed reviews from critics, with many praising the Crampton family for interacting with each other and praising Eric Stonestreet's departure, but many expressing disappointment with the overall story, and was seen by 9.77 million viewers on its initial airing. Plot After their "Made in America" trip, the family plans another one to England, this time with the whole family. Luke and Charlie receive their old home, but the new one has been sealed and is uninhabitable, so Luke and Charlie move in with their parents. Meanwhile, Phil and Mitch are on a vacation, so Claire is given the job of taking care of the kids and Phil. The rest of the family also go to Europe for three weeks. Phil and Mitch get into a fight, with Mitch accusing Phil of getting into a car accident for a made-up reason and refusing to
