VSTi -Now, count your blessings. You just escaped getting hit by a tornado. DENVER -- The National Weather Service has issued tornado warning for Aspen, Eagle, Gunnison, Montrose, and Pitkin County and parts of San Miguel, Summit and Eagle counties. All cities and counties in the warning area are under tornado watch. A tornado watch means conditions are favorable for the development of severe thunderstorms and tornadoes. The National Weather Service says a tornado may be confirmed if it touches down or is reported within a tornado warning area. Some damage is possible, but it's not likely. That means if you feel your skin tingle, you may be experiencing a strong wind and not a tornado. The Colorado Springs area is under a severe thunderstorm watch until 11 p.m. Right now, visibility is expected to be 1/4 of a mile or less due to cumulus clouds, and temperatures will drop to a record low of 7 degrees. Winds will gust up to 35 mph. "This is the coldest it's been in 77 years," said Mike Dumini with the National Weather Service. "It's going to feel very cold to the touch." Cloud tops could reach 10,000 feet, Dumini said. Lightning is possible, Dumini said, and it's possible for hail to be up to 3 inches in diameter, larger than golf balls. "We're looking for strong to severe thunderstorms and tornadoes and that's what we're all watching for," he said.
